Indian Hills Community College

MISSION STATEMENT:

To provide a safe, nurturing early childhood education for children between the ages of six weeks and six years of age that fosters growth and reflects best practice in all areas of development. To provide Indian Hills Community College students with opportunities to apply developmental theory through interaction with young children.

OUR PHILOSOPHY:

The Indian Hills Child Development Center believes that a quality early childhood program provides for the unique development each child in a positive environment. A major determinant of program quality is the extent to which knowledge of child development is applied to program practices which are both age appropriate and individually appropriate.

In a developmentally appropriate program, children's interests and skills guide curriculum planning. A child's primary mode of learning should be through play; therefore, we believe providing the time for play, drives the content to become relevant to each child.

Consistent, understandable limits for children, as well as teachers who respond to inappropriate behavior with insight, sensitivity, and skill are the foundation of our guidance and discipline philosophy. This allows children to become increasingly responsible for themselves and to understand inappropriate behavior and how to modify it.

We believe parents are the most significant adults in a child's life and therefore do everything possible to insure parents' involvement with our program. Developing strategies for keeping communication flowing freely is part of each staff member's responsibility.
